COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Course Activities:

Before beginning your course work, be sure to review the Excelsior College Guidelines for Online Interaction (http://www.excelsior.edu/netiquette) (a.k.a. Online Etiquette or "Netiquette"). If you have any questions regarding these guidelines, please feel free to direct them to your instructor. All student work in this course may be submitted to plagiarism detection software.

M2A1 : Thinking Critically about Global Issues - 10%

This essay is the foundational start to your writing in this course. In this essay, you will write about a global issue in your area of interest. For example, if you have studied environmental studies, you might want to write this paper about global pollution. (This example is being used because it is what Elder and Paul use in their article, Analytical Thinking. Remember, you cannot use pollution as your topic.) See page 6 in Elder and Paul's article, Analytical Thinking, as an example.

In M1D2, you selected a topic for this paper. This was your first step. Here are the remaining steps to follow:

1. Research your chosen topic in the EC Library. You can easily get to the library through the left-hand purple toolbar. The Liberal Arts Research Guide for Undergraduate Capstones (http://libguides.excelsior.edu.vlib.excelsior.edu/liberal-arts-capstones) is a useful place to start. You can use web sources that are scholarly. If you are not sure, please ask your instructor. Do not use Wikipedia.
2. Select three to five scholarly research pieces about your topic. To learn more about how to tell if the research you found is scholarly, please visit the EC Library's Scholarly vs. Popular Video (http://my.excelsior.edu/group/library/scholarly-vs-popular-video).
3. Using the article by Elder and Paul, Analytical Thinking, refer to pages 5 and 6. On pages 5 and 6 are examples of how to apply the "8 Elements of Reasoning."

4 of 10
4. You cannot use "pollution" as a topic, since that is the Elder and Paul example.
5. Write your responses to the list that Elder and Paul provide in narrative form; bulleted lists will not be accepted.
6. Use your references to support your answers.

This paper is to demonstrate your critical thinking skills. As such, you are to take what you have researched and analyze and synthesize what is written. You are to form educated responses to the Elder and Paul list, which means you need to include evidence from experts in your field.

Some remaining guidelines:

1. Write 5 pages in length, or 1250, words minimum
2. Double space
3. Include a title page
4. Refer to the SLA Writing Grading Rubric for details on the grading expectations

Capstone Final PowerPoint Presentation

Introduction:

The purpose of a capstone course is to measure how well you have fulfilled Excelsior College's outcomes for the Bachelor's Degree in Liberal Arts.

You chose to be a liberal arts student because you want to pursue a field, area of focus or depth that will help further your career, begin you career, or expand your personal interests. Therefore, this capstone strives to ensure that you walk away with a degree that accomplishes your goals. This Final PowerPoint Presentation is a chance to show what you have learned and expand upon your knowledge.

PowerPoint Instructions:

For this final PowerPoint, you are to expand upon what you started in M2A1: Thinking Critically about Global Issues. In that first paper, you identified a theme that comes from an area of interest, your area of focus or depth. It is this theme that you are going to use as your focus in this PowerPoint.

You will work on the Final PowerPoint Project from Module 3 through Module 7. You will complete the assignment in three parts, due in Module 3, Module 5 and Module 7, as described in detail below.

M3D3: Final PowerPoint Topic Discussion (part of the discussion grade worth 30%)

This discussion is designed to help you flesh out your final PowerPoint topic. Here is what you should do:

1. Review your M2A1 paper. Identify your theme on a large scale, for example, poverty and education. (You cannot use this theme now.)
2. Take the theme you have identified and narrow it down to a more specific topic (For example: How does poverty in urban centers effect preschool-age children's learning, if at all?)
3. Once you have defined this topic, you should brainstorm about how you can show that you have learned about diversity, ethics, critical thinking, and communication with regard to this topic. (For example: Urban centers may encompass diverse demographics. Therefore, should educational funds be distributed equally across urban centers, or alternately in a way that... redresses existing inequality? What does each side say about the topic? Can you communicate these ideas well?)

4. You will finish this topic exploration by constructing your discussion thread.

5. Here are the instructions for your discussion thread (M3D3):
   a. Write a 250-300 word post
   b. Write your theme and topic in the subject line
   c. Identify the larger theme
   d. Write a unique topic (no one in the course can have the same topic)
   e. Identify your topic and write about how it evolved from your original theme
   f. Write about how your topic will address diversity and ethics
   g. Explain how you will use critical thinking
   h. Explain how you will improve/master oral and written communication

6. Here is assistance for your writing:
   a. APA Citations Style Tip Sheet
   b. Smarthinking (https://my.excelsior.edu/group/current-student-myexcelsior/smarthinking) (writing tutors are available)
   c. Grammarly (https://my.excelsior.edu/group/current-student-myexcelsior/free-grammar-check) (to assist with your grammar electronically)

The discussions are worth 30% of the final grade and are assessed according to the Discussion Rubric.

M5A1: Capstone Final PowerPoint Presentation Outline (10%)

An outline is essential to creating a clear and organized PowerPoint that fulfills the assignment requirements. Students who use outlines tend to do much better in their assignments than students who do not. Thus, this part of the Final PowerPoint Presentation outline is intended to assist you in writing a thesis statement, organizing the presentation, and demonstrating how the research and your claims connect.

Here are your instructions:

4. Write an introductory statement that includes:

6. Support each claim with research
7. Write a few words on how this research connects to the claims and PowerPoint thesis
8. Write a conclusion statement, which includes a short summary
9. Outlines are written using either incomplete sentences or complete sentences (you can choose)

12. The outline should be 3-5 pages in length
13. Use the APA style wherever you include citations
14. It is not necessary to include a reference page

You will be expected to use online course tools (Discussions and Chat rooms) to interact with your peers and work collaboratively to improve your understanding of underlying course ideas and issues.

To lessen the risk of losing your work, do not write major discussions directly into a discussion posting. Instead, compose and check your work in other software (such as Microsoft Word) and then use the Create Message button and copy and paste your text into the new posting.
